

SALVATION FARMS

Lamoille Valley Gleaning

Serving farmers and eaters in Vermont's Lamoille Valley. We engage and feed the community through collecting and distributing what farmers can't sell.

Gleaning is the act of reaping after the harvest.

During 2017

- Gleaned 48,159 pounds of quality crops from 20 farms
- Engaged 151 volunteers who contributed 517 hours
- Distributed 46 types of produce to 24 sites

Our Roots

Salvation Farms started as a grassroots gleaning program in 2004, serving the Lamoille Valley.

Our program serves as Vermont's most replicated model of gleaning.

Produce Donated (in pounds)

Apples	18,368
Winter Squash	11,493
Potatoes	4,528
Carrots	1,683
Mixed Veggies	1,431
Cucumbers	1,307
Corn	1,261
Peppers	1,210
Summer Sq./Zucchini	1,106
Tomatoes	992
Cooking Greens	948
Onions	873
Salad Greens	686
Cauliflower	608
Spinach	540
Cabbage	413
Melons	373
Mixed Roots	339

Who We Feed

*Produce also goes to our Winooski food hub for statewide distribution

What Our Partners Say

"It is wonderful that Salvation Farms can fill the void in getting excess produce out to Vermonters, food that otherwise may be left in the field."

—Taylor, Pete's Greens farm

"I'm more aware of how important it is to preserve the viability of local farms and to eat fresh food."

—Kay, longtime volunteer

"The residents have very much appreciated the locally grown food and it has helped them to eat more healthfully on a small budget."

—Maxine, SASH housing coordinator

info@salvationfarms.org

802-888-4360

salvationfarms.org